

The Return of Those Dam Rotarians!
India - Feb. 2027

Since 2010, our club has organized and participated in the construction of 16 check dams in the heart of India. Join us for our 17th project in Feb 2027.

The Return of Those Dam Rotarians!

India - Feb. 2027

Centuries of failed crops have eroded the local people's willingness to participate in projects that benefit the general good of their communities. Our hands-on participation, as well as the success of these projects, is changing this defeatist perception.

This was our 2019 project, completed and seen here just after the Monsoon rains in July that year. The retained water seeps down through the Earth's layers to raise the groundwater table in this area, in-time to boost crop production over a 10 sq. km area from the very next year - for many decades ahead!

Check dams, once built, require little to no maintenance or recurring costs. Yet, with one masterstroke, these projects strike at the core facets of social deprivation: Sustainable Incomes, Sanitation & Health, Education & Equal Opportunity. Each Dam has a cascading effect on the well-being of communities. Improvement in Health, Literacy, and Education among women & children has followed economic growth.

Project Benefits

- | | |
|----------------------------|---|
| ➤ Higher Groundwater Table | ➤ Recharge defunct wells within each village |
| ➤ Improved crop yield | ➤ Less time for women to fetch water from distant wells |
| ➤ Healthier livestock | ➤ Time for gainful employment of women - more income |
| ➤ Increased family income | ➤ Children complete school – no need to start earning |

Join us in Feb. 2027 to build our 17th Dam.

Destination Highlights

Delhi: Delhi is one of the world's oldest cities and has been continuously inhabited since the 6th century BCE. No fewer than eight cities have been built side by side on this site over the centuries. The city as it stands today has been created by Hindu, Muslim, and British builders. In a few minutes, you can be transported from the neo-Classical architecture of the elegant garden city of New Delhi to the narrow, twisting lanes that surround Chandni Chowk in the old town.

Pre – Project Extension A: Tiger Reserve- Jaipur - Taj Mahal

The famous Ranthambhor Tiger Reserve is spread over an estimated area of 250sq miles. Steep crags embrace a network of lakes and rivers, and atop one of these hills, is the impressive Ranthambhor Fort, built in the 10th century. Old crumbling walls, ruined pavilions, wells, and other ancient structures stand witness to the region's glorious past.

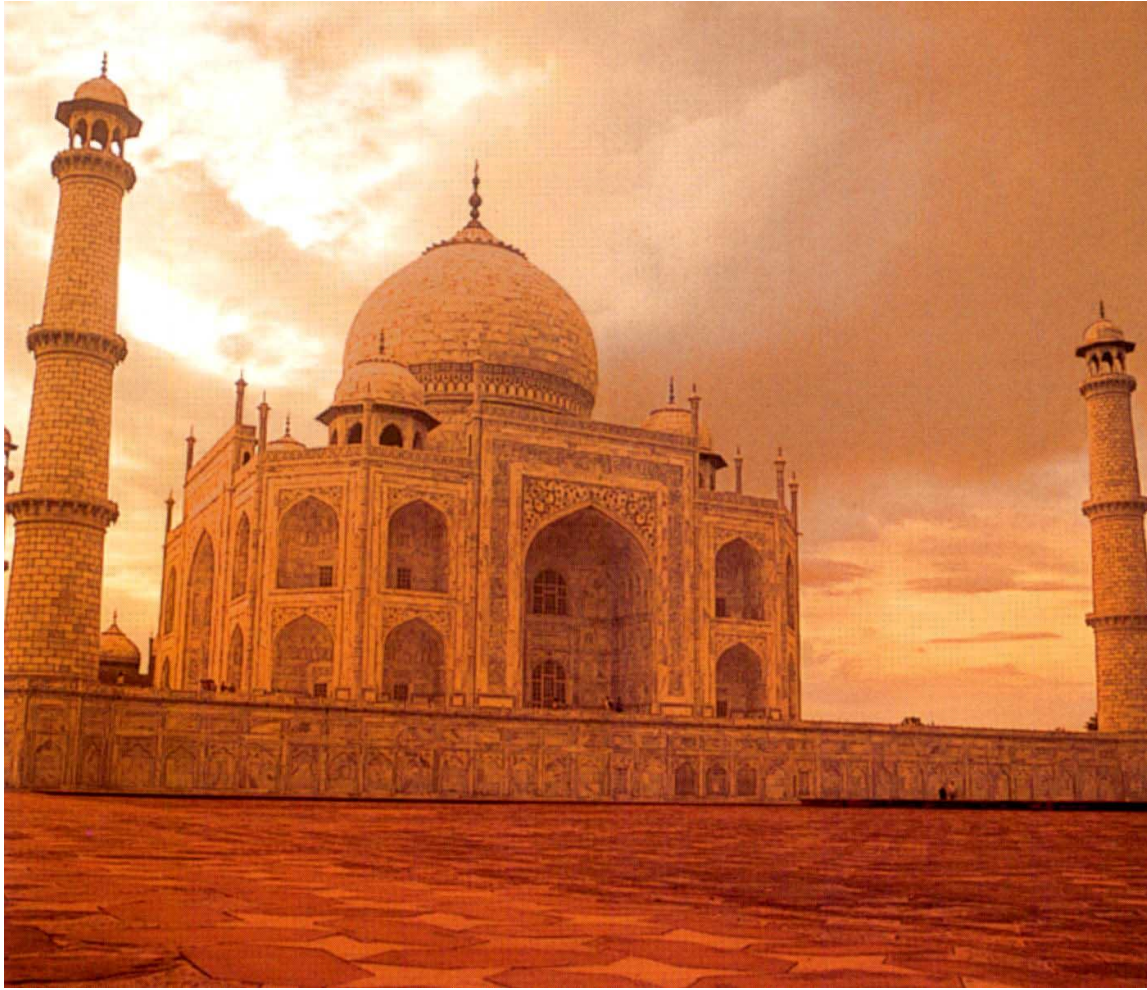

The forest is peppered with the battlements and spillovers of the Ranthambhor Fort. Apart from tigers, the reserve has its share of panthers, found on the outskirts due to the inevitable conflicts with the tiger population.

Jaipur: The fortifications surrounding Jaipur give it a medieval atmosphere. The delicate honeycomb design of the Palace of Winds glows in the light of the setting sun. Quaint bazaars thrive around this edifice. High above the city, the towers and domes of the Amber Palace are reminiscent of scenes from a fairy tale.

India - Feb. 2027

At Agra, the Moghul Emperor Shah Jahan presented the world with its most magnificent monument to conjugal Love. A colossal, perfectly proportioned mass of marble, the Taj Mahal is literally a jewel. It was fashioned over 17 years by 20,000 craftsmen & laborers. From a distance, it seems to float, like a fantastic mirage, upon the banks of the River Yamuna.

Nepal

The Kingdom of Nepal is an exotic country cradled by the magnificent Himalayas. It has more than 100 peaks over 20,000 ft. straddling its border with Tibet, including Mt. Everest. The colorfully dressed people of this country are of diverse descent. Their culture is rich with ancient arts and crafts, music and dance.

Kathmandu is an exotic town cradled by the magnificent Himalayas. It has a quaint and easy charm. The temples of Hanuman Dhoka are exotic and impressive, and have erotic carvings on the roof struts. A little girl is selected every few years to be the “Kumari” - a Living Goddess. She is worshipped as one till she attains puberty. Kathmandu also has the largest Buddhist Stupa in the world at Budhanath. The Hindu Temple at Pasupatinath has superb golden-roofed shrines and huge doors sheathed in heavy-worked silver. The surrounding hills offer close-up views of the Himalayan giants.

Bhaktapur has long been called the City of Devotees, and has recently emerged as Nepal's Cultural Capital. Because of the city's medieval architecture, its rich tradition of ancient music, handicrafts and ritual dance, as well as its present renaissance of vibrant Newar culture, Bhaktapur has been designated by UNESCO as a World Heritage Site. Situated at an altitude of 4500 ft, it is the home of medieval art and architecture. Shaped like a conch shell, the town covers an area of 4 square miles. Pottery and weaving are its traditional industries. The city lies about 9 miles east of Kathmandu. The main square of the city contains innumerable temples and other architectural showpieces like the Lion Gate, a Statue of King Bhupinder Malla, a Picture Gallery, the Golden Gate, the Palace of 55 Windows, the Batsala Temple, the Bell of Barking Dogs, and a replica of Pashupatinath Temple.

Dhulikhel offers breath- taking panoramic views of another section of the Himalayas, stretching from Langtang to Everest and beyond. We shall also delve into the heart of the old town where you can lose yourself to time in the tangle of cobbled lanes. Discover ancient houses with sagging wooden frame works, intricate carvings, hidden temples and thriving market squares. Discover the color and culture of this vibrant place as you wander past old men smoking pipes, women hand spinning wool, traditional wood carving workshops, and hidden gardens through ancient archways DARJEELING (apx.2134 m): The mighty Kanchenjunga (8586 m / 28000 ft), third highest mountain in the world, towers above this charming town like a gigantic ship floating upon a sea of clouds. In the distance, Mt.Everest retains its aloofness. The town itself is a typical Indian “hill-station”.

There is "The Mall", of course, a promenade with “fashionable” stores alongside and Kanchenjunga playing hide and seek in the skies above. The lower regions of the town are teeming with colorful tribesmen trading their products in the busy market. The town is surrounded by picturesque tea plantations.

Calcutta (Kolkata)

At first sight, this is a bewildering, overwhelming city of over seven million. A veritable dynamo, it is inhabited for the most part by Bengalis, an emotional and artistic people who have been called the Irish of India. Large sections of the city are still Victorian in appearance, and there are several reminders of the British Raj. Calcutta was the British capital of India till 1911. The Victoria Memorial is a mammoth pile of white marble in which European and Mughal influences have merged. The 'Writer's Building' was built in 1780 by the East India Company to house its clerks, and is still used today for the same purpose by the West Bengal government. The 'Raj Bhavan' - originally 'Government House' - is a replica of Kedleston Hall in Derbyshire, and the High Court is an exact copy of the Town Hall of Ypres! Some of the few really Indian landmarks are the early 19th century Kali Temple and the Parasnath Jain Temples, elaborately decorated and almost Burmese in design. Perhaps the most interesting part of our tour shall be the drives between each place of visit, as we inch along the seemingly total chaos and confusion of Calcutta's streets.

Varanasi(Benaras)

Since time immemorial, millions of pilgrims arrive every year in Benaras, in search of salvation in the waters of the holy river Ganges. At the crack of dawn, they become a thousand spots of colour bathed in the golden waters of the Ganges. The scene on the bathing ghats is quite fascinating to the western eye. Yogis meditate in impossible positions. Brahmins sit under mushroom-like umbrellas, to bless everyone for a fee. Men and women in various stages of wetness reverently launch little oil-lamps on to the water. Bursts of religious song mingle with the tolling of temple bells, and the rhythmic beat of washer-men pounding the city's laundry. On a more sombre note, the smoke from the funeral pyres of the Manikarnika Ghat drifts heavenwards. Cremation at this ancient Ghat is believed to release the soul from the endless cycle of birth and rebirth.

Pre-Project: Extension D: Kerala Backwaters

Cochin: Set on a cluster of islands and narrow peninsulas, the port city of Cochin (Kochi) reflects the eclecticism of Kerala perfectly. With a rich past and a bustling present, it has always been the business hub of the region from its early days. Cochin is a living blend of people and Cultures. We shall find Jewish synagogues, Dutch architecture, Hindu temples, and Chinese fishing nets. The air is heavy with the smell of exotic spices, and the shouts of Dhoti-clad men pushing overloaded carts around the harbour.

fragrance of fresh tea wafts into the winding lanes of Munnar town from the surrounding tea- tea-processing plants.

Munnar is a gracious hill town at about 5000 to 8000 ft, set amidst a picturesque section of the Western Ghats. It offers a breathtaking expanse of tea plantations falling away to the horizon in precise green steps. Slender blue and red gum trees shoot up into the sky, and the heady Alleppey (Alappuzha) backwaters are a vast, scenic network of canals, rivers, and lakes in Kerala. Fringed with palm trees, they offer serene houseboat cruises, kayaking, and glimpses into local village life and rice farming. Major attractions include the Vembanad Lake and navigating narrow canals via traditional Shikara boats. We will also enjoy a day cruise on the unique Houseboats of Kerala. Overnight in a houseboat.
